Study shows missed opportunities for foreign investment in mining

Posted: 21 Nov 2011 03:31 PM PST

Foreign investment in Russia's rich mineral resource sector has dropped in recent years at least partly because of a mistaken belief by international mining companies that Russia does not welcome their investment in its rich mineral endowment, according to a study by Kinross Gold Corp.

Kinross, the largest Canadian investor in Russia, presented its findings from a study on foreign investment in mining to Prime Minister Vladimir Putin during the Annual Plenary meeting of his Foreign Investment Advisory Council (FIAC).
